I've been able to get results in my first few years. The three biggest issues I'll be tackling in the next Congress are rebuilding our nation's crumbling infrastructure, increasing Michigan's share of federal road funding and transportation investments, and further workforce development and training opportunities. I serve on the House Transportation and Infrastructure Committee, and am a founding Co-Chair of the Congressional Skilled Workforce Caucus -- through those roles, I intend to get even more results for Michigan and our workers.
